

Endermologie is performed using the Cellu M6 Keymodule

Are there any side affects?

If used correctly there shouldn't be any side affects. Clients are advised to drink plenty of water after the treatment to help flush toxins.

Is it more effective than diet and exercise?

Exercise and diet are beneficial, but do not break the cellulite cycle alone. We recommend combining a healthy lifestyle while undertaking Endermologie .

How many sessions before I see results?

Usually people see changes within five or six sessions, however, best results are seen after an average of 14 treatments.

How long do the results last?

Results can last up to a few years depending on age, lifestyle and hormonal changes. Maintenance sessions are recommended to extend the effect of the results.

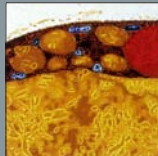

A non-invasive painless treatment

Endermologie is performed by LPG certified therapists exclusively trained and equipped with the Cellu M6 Keymodule.

Endermologie is a gentle, relaxing treatment that provides a general sense of well-being and revitalisation. It is a non-invasive treatment that involves no medical procedures or use of any chemical substances, creams or gels.

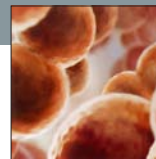

Your skin and body should feel an immediate reponse after the first Endermologie treatment. With a tailored course of treatments you will soon discover a healthier, smoother shaped figure.

At what stage is your cellulite?

Without early intervention, cellulite settles in and tends to worsen over time. On the buttocks and thighs you can identify four stages of cellulite:

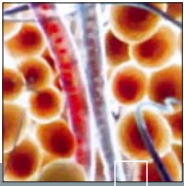

- ① While standing or lying down the skin has a smooth appearance without any dimpling on the surface.
- ① The skin has a dimpled appearance when pinched or in a seated position on a hard surface.
- ② Cellulite is visible in a standing position although has a smooth appearance when lying down.
- ③ Cellulite is visible whether standing or lying down.

The orange peel aspect of cellulite comes from anomalies occurring in the cutaneous and sub-cutaneous tissue.

What is Cellulite?

Cellulite is the uneven dimpling or “orange peel” appearance of the skin. Located mainly, but not exclusively, on the hips, thighs, buttocks and abdomen, cellulite affects approximately 90% of women.

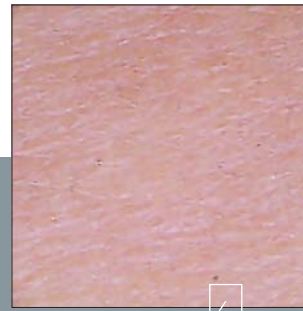

Cellulite is due to hormonal changes that influence the way fat is stored and how fluid is retained in the subcutaneous layer directly under the skin. Over time this fat and fluid increases, stretching the skin inconsistently and inhibiting normal circulation. The fat becomes harder to metabolise and toxins begin to build up instead of being flushed out naturally.

What is Endermologie ?

Endermologie is a specialised treatment for cellulite using the Cellu M6 Keymodule, (a device which uses a small hand-held treatment head with motorised suction and rollers). Wearing a fulllength body stocking, the suction and rollers work over the entire body, concentrating on problem areas. Endermologie works by exercising the skin and body’s connective tissue. The controlled suction gently lifts and holds the skin while the rollers act to massage and stimulate the area being treated. Endermologie breaks down fibrosis around problem fat cells stimulating efficient metabolism. Fluid retention and toxin build up is effectively eliminated through a through lymphatic drainage. Collagen and elastin production is boosted generating a healthier rejuvenated skin tone. Endermologie will help contour your body, improve your general wellbeing and decrease the appearance of cellulite.

Six questions about Endermologie

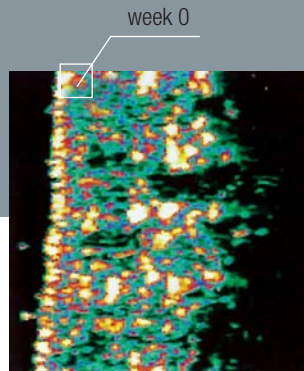

Is it new?

Treatments using the original Cellu M6 were aimed at rehabilitating scars, burn and connective tissue disorders. A surprising sideeffect was discovered - the reduction of cellulite and significant inch loss from the body. In 1984 Endermologie became a specific procedure for the treatment of cellulite and body contouring. Over 95,000 treatments are now performed every day in over 90 countries worldwide.

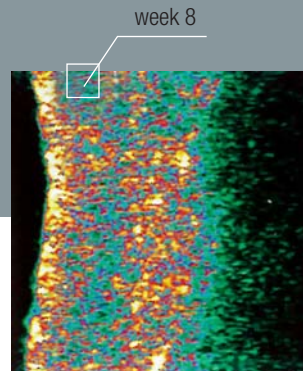

Has the technique been scientifically proven?

The results achieved by Endermologie have been confirmed by scientific studies conducted in leading American and European universities. Endermologie was the first FDA (American Food & Drug Administration) approved treatment to reduce the appearance of cellulite.
